Don't just stand there faking.
Don't just stand there making like you're one of us.

You can't just fit the part.
You have to set yourself apart.

The story of the rejected, the outcasts of everything thought right.
Saw through their bullshit, questioned the ways taught fit.
We wear these badges of heart forever inked in.

Don't just stand there faking.
Don't just stand there making like you're one of us.

You can't just fit the part.
You have to set yourself apart.

Predict your actions, you fit the mold so well.
Who could have thought that you'd ever choose that shell.

Never thought you'd change like the rest out of your own will.
Never thought you'd change like the rest now you always will
