I have watched you waste your love on gutter trash
I have stood by you while your heart was breaking in half
And I have held your warm body next to mine while you were sleeping
I have watched you spread yourself too thin while you were awake

And now the moonlight is burning your glory
And now I can see just where you want me to stay

Try as I might to convince myself otherwise
Try as I might to convince myself otherwise
I have eyes for you only

And I am watching you waste your frustration on these small people
I am wanting you to notice who's never hurt you And I am and I am wishing you were in a better space in your head
And I am wishing you away for a second

And now you're guilt about this has burnt my inside
To a point of boiling
Now I can see just how small I look in there

Try as I might to convince you otherwise
Try as I might to convince you otherwise
I have eyes for you only

And now the moonlight is burning your glory
And now I can see just where you want me to stay

Try as I might to convince you otherwise
Try as I might to convince you otherwise
I have eyes for you only...
