From where I am standing
You seem pretty lonely
Like you are still missing somebody
And from the look of things
I know you need someone to love you
Someone to love you

And I'm certain I could do that
But you are so cold and so far away
When you are laying beside me
And I know what it means when you roll away
You're not the only one who's hiding
I look for you in the darkest places
I follow you through smoke and barlight
I search for you until I am frozen
Choking on words I wish I had spoken
I wish I had spoken

But I follow you all through the night and sometimes, sometimes

I wish that you wanted me like you still want him
I guess I'm waiting
Waiting for joe to be finished with you so that I can begin
But I will not hold my breath
I've decided to hold you instead
While I watch you pass yourself around the block again
And wonder if I'm just another one of them
And you may fight it until you're dead inside
But I'll still be holding onto you for dear life Because I recognize love when it stares me down at night

And from where I am standing
You seem pretty lonely
Like you are still missing somebody
And from the look of things
I know you need someone to love you
Someone to love you

And I follow you all through the night and sometimes,
