He held a book,
opened it, then read a few lines,
"Name of God"
so he read, 'n looked into her eyes
and the fire grew, the night lit up,
as he asked: "Believe?"
"No!" She said and he nodd'd,
to the man at the guillotine.

As the sun woke up,
he stood there, out there on the fields
looked onto
a cotton string, took it and went on.
As the sun was high,
she came up, rode upon the field,
"Hit him once! Hit him twice!"
The black fell on his knees.

Refrain) and our past tales,
in every second they are told,
and our future lies,
in the power of our own decide.

See this man,
see his eyes, do you see yourself?
See his face,
now tell me, didn't he look insane?
Did'nt anyoneheld him back, opened his eyes to see..
but noone did, and so he went
and killed a million jews...

Refrain

Never do think twice!
Never take advice!
We have lived our lives till now.. (so what?)
