I should have known you'd disappear
I should have known you wouldn't be here
Dancing in the brightest light
Burning down this endless night
I could have seen something bigger then
Got turned around somewhere, somewhen
Turning to somebody again
For just that one more time and then

You fall on every whim
Come again to a place that lets you in
And you never see the end
Wasted again
Wasted again

I could have seen the turning tide
Got swept away on the longest ride
Trying to make up for lost time
Trying to find what's left behind
All the little lights that shine
In my mind and all the time
It's just that one more time you spend
Well just that one more time and then

You fall on every whim
Come again to a place that lets you in
And you never see the end
Wasted again
Wasted again

Got turned around somewhere and then

What did you expect to find
Burning down this endless night
What did you expect to see
Who did you expect to meet
What did you expect to find
Burning down this endless night
What did you expect to see

When you're all the world away

And you're bringing in the fire
And you're bringing in the flame
Bringing in the worst
Bringing in the pain
When you want it to be right
You want it back and then
You're all the world away
Again
