Something's coming over me
I'm so tired I can't see
The face is all the same when your wasted Everything is like the last
That you're always moving fast
The colors in the end are amazing
And your heart beats so slow all the ways that come
and go
All alone in the back and now here it comes
Its funny how things they change
Even though I know it's strange
Its hard to hold on to the things that leave you Promises that you make Always turning to mistakes
And soon enough they learn not to believe you
And your heart beats so slow all the ways that come
All alone in the back having too much fun
When the words all make no sense and you cannot comprehend
All alone in the back and now here it comes Here it comes
Now there's nobody here tonight to put you in a better light
So if you gotta go no one would balme you
The ones we try to please the most
They leave us empty as a ghost
But if they wonder who no one would name you
And your heart beats so slow all the ways that come
All alone in the back having too much fun
When the words all make no sense and you cannot
All alone in the back and now here it comes
