The alarm clock woke my sleeping but I lay there for a minute
With a million cobwebs clinging to my brain
I stopped that bell from ringin' in the times it takes a heartbeat
Then I settled back and closed my eyes again.

I reached out for my baby for some early mornin' lovin' Then the terrible truth came staggering through my head
There was just an empty pillow and the mem'ry of his kisses
Baby wasn't there beside me in the bed.

It's the morning after baby let me down
It's the daybreak and the heartbreak that I found Only silence to torment me no strong hands to touch
me gently
It's the mornin' after baby let me down.

There was nothing to hold on to but the sheets that fell around me
And I started into trembling like a leaf How could he ever leave me he was more than just a lover
And he knew all the ways to make me feel complete.

I can taste the salty teardrops God it's gettin' hard to swallow
Hope a glass of wine will take his love away
Got no appetite for eatin' just a sick and empty feeling
What a good for nothing way to start the day.

It's the morning after baby let me down
It's the daybreak and the heartbreak that I found Only silence to torment me no strong hands to touch
me gently
It's the mornin' after baby let me down...
