

Chris Ledoux

"Homecoming"

Visit "Homecoming" on MotoLyrics.com

While driving down the last four miles of gravel road to home

All the old familiar landmarks seem like long lost friends

And as he pulls in to the ranch he sees his mom hangin' out the wash

And dad is ridin' down the hill with old smokie

He never realized what a good cook his mom was

Guess he took a lot of things for granted

But for the past year he has been living on bologna burgers and beans

And he thinks he might just stay home for awhile

Well, there's a dance in town tonight

And he figures he will just go in and see some of his old friends

Well, he runs into Bill and John and they ask

Where all he's been and about the bulls

Well, then from behind him he hears someone call his name

He turns around to see a beautiful young lady

He doesn't recognize her at first but then it dawns on him

This is the same skinny little girl who use to

Tag along with him back in high school

My, how the flowers grow, well, they danced and talked about things

And somewhere around midnight for the first time in his life

The cowboy realizes he is fallin' in love

And you know what I guess, it was bound to happen

Visit Chris Ledoux page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.