if i can walk 1000 miles a day i try to do it cos i don't know if u really say i think i saw the sky tonight pushing through it feels alright and i just don't know who i want to be and every time i see your face i laugh out loud acting hot your fitting in with all the crowd and if i could i'd stop the time and ask you for a clever line and just because i know you won't give it to me its raining hard again here now that'll never change

lets start a war
so who's to blame
when it starts to rain down at times i think that all i need is summer sun burning in my eyes and breaking through the trees at times i feel my place is empty it looks as though i never met me but my smile does only show one side of me and i can show you a little slice of everyone laughing in the dark i think your having fun the sunlight in your face that time washes away all the grime makes me forget just how much i hate you tonight

yeah yeah yeah...

when it starts to rain starts to rain

starts to rain
starts to rain down
