Hello again, why so old?
Wasn't time your friend, I must be told
Hello again, it seems so long
Since we last met, how has it gone?

Don't accept the blame, I would, I would not complain
'Cause I'm sure it wasn't your own fault
That you never made it out your vault
Just lock the door and find some time to scream
To scream again

Just say, when
And you'll stop the pain of your life, bring it to an end
Just say, when
And you could make amends
Just say hello, say, hello again

Hello again, it's not that hard
No dead ends, even with the scars

Don't accept the blame, I would, I would not complain
'Cause I'm sure it wasn't your own fault
That you never made it out your vault
Just lock the door and find some time to scream

Just say, when
And you'll stop the pain of your life, bring it to an end
Just say, when
And you could make amends
Just say hello, say, hello again

You have no home, you lost your throne
Where has it gone? Well it could all come back
But you'll be in bed rather walking dead
You stumble and you crack the ground
Well you're pinned down, just say

When you could stop the pain
Just say, when
And you could make amends
Just say, hello, say, hello again

Hello again, hello again, hello again, hello again
It's not the end if you just say, hello again
