The sun wakes me on devil's morning- his
Arms stretched over the town- to make a
Red sky, month of July- and you are
Gorgeous, the dust you ingest you die
Broke my link, my ideal
Now their eyes, like their lies
Move on quick, like a suicide

Summer prays that she could be rain
As the car crash left you for the blame
And nightfall brought your demons and evil arcade
She is the famine, I'm California
He is Dakota, I'm California
I can't be lying in California
Well where's your Christian name, California

The sunset was the devil's warning and it's Siren was louder than love and it
Sounds so pretty and sweet that you
Fell down the leaves of a cherry tree
Something born in my brain
Bleeding silver and rain

Summer prays that she could be rain
As the car crash left you for the blame

And nightfall was a shock so you closed your eyes
A fever breaks out through the lies
And I'm gone cause I felt the curse of the sun
She is the famine, I'm California
He is Dakota, I'm California
I can't be lying in California
There's lots of sugar in California

He is beautiful and a whore
And he'll die with you on the floor
Sounds like sugar into your ear
And his spiderweb caught your tear
I noticed he's writing his name in your hand
I noticed...

Summer prays that she could be rain

As the car crash left you for the blame
And nightfall brought your demons and evil arcade
(California)
She is the famine, I'm California
He is Dakota, I'm California
I can't be lying in California
You left your sweetheart in California
