This is a story for blues singers baby
This is a story for a ship's captain, too
You never know just what's around the corner
What pain or pleasure's gonna come at you

Ooh aah
Ooh aah

The tall girl's eyes do all the talking
In a sad and beautiful world
Yeah, the tall girl's eyes do all the talking
It's all to do with the love she wants in this world

Ooh aah
Ooh aah

She got long blond hair and blue eyes shining
And his fingers make her come in her sleep
But she says to herself you need nobody darling
Ooh, what about love

Ooh aah
Ooh aah

Don't matter what a lucky thing you are
Don't matter just how cool you think you, you
When the girl walks up to the bar
Oh you just, just got to give it a spin

And she sits there immaculate at a table
And it's just close enough for you
As she stares at a street lamp from a table
Never, never she'll notice you
But you don't accept this situation
You want to get up and tell her something good

Some days you make me feel so happy
Some days I feel blue
Some days I'm so [Incomprehensible], so neutral
Some days I fall in love with you

This is a story for blues singers baby

This is a story for a ship's captain, too
You never know just what's around the corner
What pain or pleasure's gonna come at you

Ooh aah
Ooh aah
Ooh aah
Ooh aah
