Come, take what you know
Forget all the things you hold
Don't mind you say

We're getting bored
We're getting colder
We don't behave
We don't know what to say
We don't know what to say
One last goodbye
'Twas the day you went away
That was only yesterday
And so the lines that we tied
Who's to say my thoughts will change?
We no longer share the weight.

I can't deny
To say you're wrong
I know you're right; we don't belong
When no one else will let you be
With all the thoughts that you will never feel.

I don't know you; I don't want to.
I don't know you; I don't want to.

One last goodbye
'Twas the day you went away
That was only yesterday
And so the lines that we tied
Who's to say my thoughts will change?
We no longer share the weight.

Arms to walk on
Arms to walk on
Let all the history come into the light.
Deny yourself pleasures that you hide,
When it's gone.
When it's gone,
When it's really gone.

Always so much suffering
If you would only let it be

All the nasty papercuts you've complained of

You won't by any luck

These things you're thinking of is sickening.

All blood and all these things we've done

They are gone

They are gone

They are gone

They are gone
