Did you forget about last October?
I was there for you when you got sober.
Six months, here we are again.
Never thought you'd slip back in.

I was gonna put it all in a letter,
To your face it would be much better.
How loud do I have to scream,
To make sure you're hearing me?

And now,
There you are passed out,
An empty needle by the couch,
I think this breath,
Is your last breath,

Don't let me be right, right.
You could face the truth to save your life. Why,
Even when it's there in black and white, I've
Done everything I can but, you won't even try.
Every day for you was just a lie. Well,
This could be your last night alive,
Don't let me be...
Don't let me be right.

I'm checking on your vital signs,
The still life in your bloodshot eyes,
Looking at me like you don't even know me,
I know you're dying slowly.

And as I carry you away, from here,
I whisper in your ear,

Don't let me be right, right.

You could face the truth to save your life. Why,
Even when it's there in black and white, I've
Done everything I can but,
You won't even try.
Every day for you was just a lie. Well,
This could be your last night alive,
Don't let me be...

Don't let me be right.

You're fading,
While I'm waiting,
This is stupid,
I hate it,
I hate it... (hate it)

Don't let me be right.
You could face the truth to save your life.
Even when it's there in black and white.
Done everything I can but,
You won't even try.
Every day for you was just a lie.
This could be your last night alive,
Don't let me be...
Don't let me be...
Don't let me be right.

You could face the truth to save your life. I've Done everything I can but,
You won't even try.
(You won't even try, you won't even try)
This could be your last goodbye.
Don't let me be...
Don't let me be right.
