Swallow your pride, take things in stride
You never know what's going down
You play the game, the rules will change
And leave you lying on the ground

The road is never ending
My compass point is bending

The hours roll out of control
And there is nothing you can do
Answers will come one by one by one
And all the rest is up to you

My cup is overflowing
I don't know where I'm going
The road is never ending
By compass point is bending

And I don't know what's in store
Just reality I tried so to ignore
I can't see beyond the door
But I have to push on through
Push on through

My cup is overflowing
I don't know where I'm going
The world is slowly spinning
No losing and no winning
The road is never ending
My compass point is bending
