One day I'll catch this big wave
And take it on, not be swept away
Sometimes my arms get so tired
That when my turn comes it's gone again

If I could only wake up not feeling so confused
About what I got and what I'm trying not to lose

This love is like a changing wind
That passes by me, blows me away
And the only thing that's certain is I'm here today
And I don't think I could handle any other way
If I get dragged down I'll come up again

If I could only wake up not feeling so confused
About what I want and what I'm trying not to lose

I don't mind watching you if you're happy where you are
I've got a feeling something's on the horizon
But I just can't see that far

If I could only wake up not feeling so confused
About what I want and what I'm trying not to lose

One day I'm gonna wake up not feeling so confused
About what I got and what I'm trying not to lose
