So I run into you, you're on the way back from another fabulous premiere.

Disheveled, just so, black clothes, newly colored fake black hair.

You look me over like maybe i might be OK every now and then.

Man, you tell me 'bout that groovy downtown artist
dude,

your famous new best friend.

He's givin' you 10 signed originals and underwriting
your environmental fund.

I used to fall for it all.

Now I'm Gone, Gone, Gone!

You've got a book tour and there's a bidding war for your latest screenplay rights.

Your subs are here 'n' the leaf work's gonna land you a feature in the Times.

You pull out the book you're reading, something 'bout empathy.

You say your heart is oh so very open, now you can love
so completely.

N' your kid's the the most multi-dimensional child his teacher's ever known.

I used to fall for it all.

Now I'm Gone, Gone, Gone!
