It's been one year and one half now
And you're still right in front
And li fell in love with you so long ago Living life for something real
And you know it's not drinking beer
More to life than waking up to someone you don't know
Time and time again
li've seen you standing there with all of your friends
And I want so bad to be the one next to you Living life for something true not something they tell you to Living life for something you know is going to last (sorry steve forgot the 4th and 5th verse it was kinda an improv thing, oh well..)
