So much happened
And I couldn't deny
That I broke your feelings
With the way that I lied

So I do understand
The reason you became so weak
Oh, baby, you're not half the person
That you used to be

Brag your exploits
Down the telephone
While you scatter her images
Around our home

And it's strange how
Where you feel pride I felt only shame
I guess it's not unusual
That I took all the blame

Did you feel as guilty
When you whispered out my name?

They say it takes a while
To really mean goodbye
You say you feel confused
But I'm just feeling used

A year of misery
Has left its mark on me
I should've left you when
I wanted to but then

It's never fair
It's never fair
It's never fair
It's never fair

I wish I could remove
The things I put you through
There's nothing I could change
If we began again

But you don't have to take
Any more
Any more
Any more
Any more

I guess I'm only half the person
That you thought I'd be
I'm thinking of the time
When you first said that you loved me

I'm feeling like I'm half the person
That I ought to be
