What to do what can I say
Never knew I'll feel this way
Well, well, well, well
Yeah, yeah, yeah, yeah
Well, well, well, well

When we both had nothing, we could spend a dime
I had your protection and you had mine
I always wish you love and happiness
And for me I know you wanted just the very, very, very best
I told you every secret that's ... me
You told me your every dream and your fantasies
I thought the way the we were, sweet and innocent
But looking back, I wonder what it could have meant Something started burning, deep inside and slowly you know
And you know, and you know, and you know
Can't hold it no longer, I should let you know

That you, you, you
You didn't tell me, you really started something
Scares me to the bone, you really started something
How does it feel knowing, you really started something
That I can't leave you alone

...even teasing, what could be the reason...
Everybody's talking now
You say it's gone too far
And you like things just the way that they are,
Like they are, like they are, like they are Well it's quite as it's told,
Seems your only after control
But I couldn't be for real if I didn't say the way that I feel
Sorry if my feelings turned me into someone else
Somebody else, body else, body else
But you know ,I never ever lied to you, I never
So I won't be lying to myself, lying to myself

You didn't tell me, you really started something

Scares me to the bone, you really started something
How does it feel knowing, you really started something
Now I can't leave you alone
Honey, where could this be going? you really started something
Scares me to the bone, you really started something
How does it feel knowing, you really started something
Now I can't leave you alone.
