

Lynn Anderson

"Honey Come Back"

Visit "Honey Come Back" on MotoLyrics.com

(Jim Webb)

Well honey, I know I've said it many times before
And I said I'd never say it again
I guess I really shouldn't say anything at all
Since you're supposed to belong to her
But I just can't let you go at least now
Without tellin' you just how much I love you
So that is why I'm gonna say it one more time.

Honey, come back I just can't stand it
Each lonely day's a little bit longer
Then the last time I held you
Seems like a hundred years ago
Back to her arms and never know the joy
Of love that used to taste like honey
Come back where you belong to only me.

Well, I guess that's about all I've got to say
So I'm just gonna pack my bags and I'm gonna walk away
I know those bright lights're callin' you honey
The fine cars and pretty girls
But if you ever need someone to just love you
And some day you just may
Well, you know where I'll be and here's what I'll say.

Honey, come back I just can't stand it
Each lonely day's a little bit longer
Then the last time I held you
Seems like a hundred years ago
Back to her arms and never know the joy
Of love that used to taste like honey
Come back where you belong to only me.

Honey, come back where you belong to only me...

Visit Lynn Anderson page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.

