So I got a bit obsessive about your face
And you know it turns me on
To know that you're a head case

When I come to you in your dreams
Like rare flowers blooming for June
I have come to hear you say

That you come from deep inside
But you never meant to fall in love
Still you come from deep inside

It was so easy at first
Just to lock up break away
Now I hold my heart ache close
Just to feel like I did that day

When I came to you in your dreams
I felt velvet ease from my back
Your hands to my skin
That burns deep within
Still I come just to hear you say

That you come from deep inside
But you never meant to fall in love
Still you come from deep inside

I guess it just feels good
To wreck everything
I guess it just feels good

That you come from deep inside
But you never meant to fall in love
Still you come from deep inside
