Could it be someone's telling lies
Or could it be that I'm getting wise?
Awoke myself from a nose dive climb
I caught myself but you've lost all pride

I'm not going with you
Won't you come on with me?

You see your world in a drift fly past?
So good the feeling, you want to last

I'm not going with you
Will you come on with me?

I'm not here to watch day and night
Or to hear you drift out of life

If I could wake you a moment
I would share you my life line
Feed you some good

If I could wake you a moment
I would share you my life line
Feed you some good

I'm worried for you
But you'll not fool me
When everyone's living
I know where you'll be

If I should listen to your proposal
Put my future at your disposal
Promise me you'll keep yourself clean
Cut yourself from your midday dream

If I could wake you a moment
I would share you my life line
Feed you some good

If I could wake you a moment
I would share you my life line
Feed you some good

This was a wake up call to some friends
That I socialized with when living in and around N.W.5.
Some of them were starting to allow
The ever available powder take them down

I was often invited along only to find
The total hopelessness was not my cup of tea
And often opted for getting rat arsed at the forum
On Nutterbuggershitterfuckerbeer, time to move on
