Woke up one day
and made his way down
to the water front as he did all the days
in his 44 years
as long as the ships made it in

stands for a cause
stands for a union
for another day is gone a dying breed of workers who lived to carry on who died for the age that we're in

in a cloudy haze
the fog drifted in
and men wore his colors
who chose to begin
as a younger man
working through his days
to carry home the food
to carry home the pay

as long the ships made it in the best day was the one milestone in a marathone

on that oakland waterfront well deserved reward for a hard working one
served and now deserves whats to come

as a older man
working through every day

we all have a cause
worth waging war
worth making peace to keep we all have a love
whatever that is
or whom is thee to seek there comes a day
if were lucky enough
and the cards fall our way, i pray
