A miner was leaving her home for work when she heard a little child scream
She went to the side of the little girl's bed
"Oh mamma, I've had such a dream.

Oh mamma don't go to the mines today
For dreams have so often come true
Oh mamma, dear mamma, please don't go away
For I never could live without you

I dreamed that the mines was all ragin' with fire
And the miners all fought for their lives
Just then the scene changed at the mouth of the mines
All covered with husbands and wives.

Oh mamma don't go to the mines today
For dreams have so often come true
Oh mamma, dear mamma, please don't go away
For I never could live without you.

Go down to the village and tell your dear friends
That as sure as the bright stars do shine
That something is going to happen today
Oh mamma, don't go to the mines.

Oh mamma don't go to the mines today
For dreams have so often come true
Oh mamma, dear mamma, please don't go away
For I never could live without you
For I never could live without you
