If truth could speak
I need another
I swear it's due
I need another

When I
Get scared
When I recover
I'm sure that there
Can be another

And your life is chained Close to another Her shell is deep In laid with trouble A life for less A new removal You shed your skin And love another

And your back isn't sore anymore
And your feet touch the ground
As you step from the wall
And you gave all you could
Given all that you saw
But dappled with love
Can you see who you are

A lot gets said You lose another You shed a load And gain another

You're back in deep You know it's over You find yourself And love another

And your back isn't sore anymore And your feet touch the ground As you step from the wall And you gave all you could Given all that you saw But dappled with love Can you see who you are

Still looking for more Must you love another Must you lie Must you judge Must you take another

On you go in the dark
One day you'll discover
That you can't understand
How to love another

Dappled with love love love Can you see who you are Dappled with love love love
