Five o'clock, fade away the shadows
Leaving by the window or the door

And they're laughing
Laughing at you anyway
Yeah, they're laughing
Laughing at you every day

Eight o'clock, underneath the lamplight
Slow poison from a tiny little wound

And they're laughing
Laughing at you anyway
Yeah, they're laughing
Laughing at you every day

I understood before I knew
I realized, I'd spend my life coming back to you
Laughing at you
Laughing at you

Twelve o'clock, in the building of the mirrors
Recoil from my elongated twin

And he's laughing
He's laughing at you anyway
Yeah, he's laughing
He's laughing at you every day

I understood before I knew
'Til I realized, I'd spend my life coming back to you
I understood before I knew
I realized, I'd spend my life coming back to you

I understood before I knew
I realized, I'd spend my life coming back to you
