something held me down and made me make a promise that i wouldn't tell when the truth forgets about us but saying it now comes easily after finding out how you've been using me at least the dark don't hide it (x4) you said you only wanted friends for long enough to get rid of them you found the kind you knew would only kill you so you surrounded yourself with them

at least the dark don't hide it (x4)

the world was empty on the day when they made it but heaven needed someplace to throw all the shit human hearts and pain should never be separate the wouldn't tear themselves apart both trying to fit

now death is going to hold us up in the mirror and say we're so much alike we must be brothers see i've had a job to do but people like you have been doing it for me to one another at least i don't hide it (x4)
