Go tell the world that there is nothing here to hide
It seems like everyone's been covering their eyes

Words that You didn't say were haunting these pages
And faces You didn't make were all I was seeing
The way that they painted You, it wasn't a picture
Of one in control and I don't think they know who You are

Build brackets around You so You can come out clean
We tried to give You limits that You didn't need

Words that You didn't say were haunting these pages
And faces You didn't make were all I was seeing
The way that they painted You, it wasn't a picture
Of one in control and I don't think they know who You

You can order all this heartbreak
You don't need my permission to move
I wish they would just stop trying to filter You out We've got nothing to prove

Words that You didn't say were haunting these pages
And faces You didn't make were all I was seeing
The way that they painted You, it wasn't a picture
Of one in control and I don't think they know who You
are
