How long
Since I took a picture of you
Sweet comic the expression on your face
And all I remember of your last look
Is a love that I just cannot replace
How low
I've been falling since I lost you
Love for sale, so many parts to play
...and do I find it strange
How the thought of us two haunts me
I try in vain to wipe it all away

But in time you're always there
And I wonder
How will I keep on living without you
Leaving you,
I was not able to ponder
The pain I would be through

How long
Can I still the pangs of hunger
For your love, or am I wrong
About your hate?

You too
Could be waiting for the chance to
Break through this high and useless gate
And again you're always there...

How long
Have you been deceiving your heart
Trying hard to think
It was too late?
Sometimes it's hard, I know,
To set our habits apart
Otherwise you just cannot communicate.

How long...
