Sun came up this morning
And it's way too soon
Circled around the room
And landed on the bed I lay on
Sun came up this morning
And it's way too soon
I've been howling at the moon
Singing crazy as a loon once again

Can't help but think about the way it used to be Press your lips to mine as the rain fell hard against my window
Can't help but think about the way it used to be
When it was only you and me
We would lay up in my bedroom all day long

If I could do
The impossible
I would crawl into your arms
If life was like it supposed to be
You would call my name out loud
Call my name out loud

Can't help but think about the way it used to be
Press your lips to mine as the rain fell hard against my
Can't help but think about the way it used to be
When it was only you and me
We would lay up in my bedroom all day long

Sun came up this morning
And it's way too soon
Circled around the room
And landed on the bed I lay on
Sun came up this morning
And it's way too soon
I've been howling at the moon
Singing crazy as a loon once again

If I could do
The impossible
I would crawl into your arms

If life was like it supposed to be
You would call my name out loud
Call my name out loud
