I was a stoned drunk silhouette of my past
I lost my nerves when he took me on
He was this high-healed smooth talking middleclass bastard
Who tried to stab me for where I was from
And though his words was covered in yesterdays mud
The boys around him laugh his way
But on the parking lot where I was born
He didn't come to play
No he didn't dare to stay
You think you're better than us
You think you're better than who
You think you're better than Annies angle
You think you're down with the people who laugh when you frown
And then move from ground to ground
You think you're better than us
You think you're better than who
You think you're talking to Annies angle
You think you're down with the people who laugh when
you frown
And then move from ground to ground
Such a pit no ones hurt from your punch
Must be a drag to look so debased
On the other side youve still got your kids to die for So why take it all out on me
That angry look doesnt'tt suite your face
Youve got your medals in a box
And on the telly there's this leader saying
Blame it on the boss
Youve got to blame it on the boss
You think you're better than us
You think you're better than who
You think you're better than Annies angle
You think you're down with the people who laugh when
you frown
And then move from ground to ground
You think you're better than us
You think you're better than who
You think you're talking to Annies angle
You think you're down with the people who laugh when
you frown

And then move from ground to ground 3x
