Walking down your street
Wondering what I have come to
Counting down the weeks
Since I've been left without you
And I remember way back when
We made it first, and my heart burst
We hung out every weekend
But then you sent me
A long story
A short letter
And everything we had was finished forever
And even though I know we're through
In everything I do, I find traces of you
Every day I'm torn
But I know that you're someplace
Constellations form
That remind me of your face
And sometimes when I close my eyes
I fade away into the days
When we would talk til sunrise
Before you sent me
A long story
A short letter
And everything we had was finished forever
And even though I know we're through
In everything I do, I find traces of you
This isn't how things should have been
I made you mine on Valentine's
I even bought you ice cream
But still you sent me
A long story
A short letter
And everything we had was finished forever
And even though I know we're through
In everything I do, I find traces of you.
