This load is too much to bare.

I think I'm begining not to care.
It's driving deep down to my bones.
This load is whats taking me home.
I'll hold on just for a little while.
But there's no way you can make me smile.
Say something if you want me to stay.
Life's not fair and this one's not going your way.

I knew things were about to blow.
Now it's time to let you go
I've held you close through this long fight
But with you gone, the road is getting bright.

I'll hold on just for a little while
But there's no way you can make me smile.
Say Something if you want me to stay
Life's not fair and this one's not going your way

I knew things were about to blow.
Now it's time to let you go
I've held you close through this long fight
But with you gone, the road is getting bright.

I knew things were about to blow.
Now it's time to let you go
I've held you close through this long fight
But with you gone, the road is getting bright.
