

Mansions "Curacao Blue"

Visit "Curacao Blue" on MotoLyrics.com

I know what shirt you were wearing when I first bared your bones and in the light of the television, you were my own did you think I would stay? did you think I would go?
I was the one to make you aware of the things you ought to know
I was still waiting for the daylight when you appeared and when I'd wrap my arms around you I wasn't scared
I know just what I was drinking when I first was untrue sea air, cheap beer, and some loneliness all mixed with curacao blue did I think it would stay? what happens there doesn't go she was the one to make me aware of the things I ought to know
it was a mistake that caused your heartache I was just a kid, you should have seen yourself we were so young, but oh so serious and I understand exactly why I fell: I didn't really want you or myself

Visit Mansions page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.