I never thought of you as much of a friend as much of an audience, gal you always meant a little more than them a lot more than they did, gal I wanna split you up in millions of pieces like grains of white sand on the shores of the beaches and write a song about each one if there ever was a time that I needed you then baby, I need you right now everyone else disappoints me, but you have never let me down if there ever was a time that I needed you, it's now I used to spend my nights walking around town looking for trouble, gal sometimes I'd find it and I'd fall to the ground when I saw the sunrise, gal you saved me from breaking into millions of pieces dancefloors and beer bottles, meaningless kisses and I don't miss a single one I never want you to be erasing me I never want your heart to be breaking I never want us to ever be apart and I don't think I could live without you, so please don't ever go cause I need you now, and that, you should know
