I destroy your fields and give you bread i make you stop thinking and make you see what i said i give you sunshine with a glass of water slaughtered new notions of aesthetics may seem pathetic to you because you're nostalgic and you do, what's already been done, i don't see the fun there's so much beauty in science that alliances collapse and perhaps cease to be abstract and become one with my wife alive i dive into solitude again and there's no end cause without infinity nothing exists so i persist

the senses perception is past conception will last the vast ignorance, delivers the difference between reflecting gases in front of dark space and the sky goodbye
see what i said
