And if I had the time to solve the mystery of your crime you know I would,
If I had to shape the form of your mechanical design you know I could,
Well I've been up and down the lanes to lose the memory
Of your name and sword taken from the stone, Put in the lake but I have mended up my heart
And I have nothing more than bones to break,

But I said I do believe in all the endless roads you weave,
You may climb,
You may fall,
You could spend your lifetime on the wall,
I don't mind,

If I had the hand to take the blood out of the sand to make it dry,
And if I knew the birth and all the secrets of the earth I won't ask why, Well I've been in and out of windows just,
To try to find a doorway, I've broken off the mud that is weight upon my shoes but I've,
Mended up my heart and I have nothing more than
time to lose,

But I said I do believe in all the endless roads you
weave,
You may climb,
You may fall,
You could spend your lifetime on the wall,
I don't mind,

If I could look within the endless tears upon your skin would I go blind,
If I could carve your face upon an unfamiliar place would I be kind, I've seen visions of a ghost that stands upon a ragged sleeve,
Of all my faded dreams that I have broken at the seams but I, Mended up my heart and I have nothing more than

sorrow on the breeze,

But I said I do believe in all the endless roads you
weave,
You may climb,
You may fall,
You could spend your lifetime on the wall,
I don't mind (8x's)
