You see them on the corner in the morning
Barely seem to be awake
Praying that they won't be late
You know they're in the office when you're calling
Head inside a magazine
Wishing they could live their dream

Sleepwalking through your destiny
Dream talking of how it used to be
The future's just a memory
But it's all you got
Can't stop the clock
The wall revolves and you can't get out

One by one the dreams are gone
Today you're the lonely one
Free from all you've wished yourself
Thought you'd left you on the shelf.
How could this be history?
When the future seemed to be
Brighter than the stars above
Full of hope and full of love.

Walking through the door with the TV on Children running round your feet
Fast forward to you're asleep
And every days the same and you don't know why
You promise that you'll never be
Everything that you now see

Sleepwalking walking through your destiny
Dream talking of how it used to be
But it's all you got
Can't stop the clock
The wall revolves and you can't get out

One by one the dreams are gone
Today you're the lonely one
Free from all you've wished yourself
Thought you'd left you on the shelf.
How could this be history?
When the future seemed to be

Brighter than the stars above
Full of hope and full of love.

So follow your dreams
No matter how extreme
Really live your life (yeh)
Cos your life is in your hands
Don't take no other plans
You can do it if you just believe you can.
