

Mark Lanegan "Deep Black Vanishing Train"

Visit "Deep Black Vanishing Train" on MotoLyrics.com

[first line difficult to understand] don't you ever come down?
Tied newspaper pages are scattered across the ground lost on the violent sea gone for endless days I've tried to free myself but it's been hard to break away so long light you're bound to fall and isn't that a shame? testing shadows on the wall to late to learn another game transfixed by what isn't seen and what will never change the times I've tried to free myself It's been hard to look away

It's a deep black vanishing train on a very long track standing on the sidewalk in the rain hands behind my back lost on a violent sea day on endless day I've finally freed myself

but it's been hard to break away

Visit Mark Lanegan page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.