I walked the tatoos shop in the beach in alabama the sun hangin low and fadin' fast showed the man her lipstick kiss on that torn piece of paper and he said he'd do it for a hundred dollars cash yeah

give me that color red and put it there where she used to lay her head dip that needle in the ink and let that burgandy sink

through the sunburn
labor day has come and gone me and the boys have got to roll and i dont know when i'll hold her again so untill then
i want to wake up with her kiss
on my skin

i worked all summer with the band at the floorbama bar and saw her there the first night that we played flip flops a halter top and red bands in her hair wild and sweet like the hurricanes we drank may turned into september and by now she's touchin down in denver so dip that needle in the ink

oh labor day has come and gone
me and the boys have got to roll
so untill then
