I remember the beginning, when we danced in the kitchen, now you won't You used to throw your arms around me, say you couldn't live without me,
But now you don't
I don't want to see the truth in here tonight
So baby, maybe we should just turn out the light

I'd rather be blind, than to watch you walk away
I'd rather not hear, than to have to hear you say
But baby, you're not sure, you even love me anymore
I'd rather be wrong, about that look in your eyes
I'd rather not know, you're about to say goodbye
I can't pretend that I don't see
While you're lying here with me
There's somewhere else you'd rather be

I thought I made you happy, so why can't you look at me, anymore
Cause this room feels so empty, like you've already left me, close the door
It's easier to lie here in the dark
So I don't have to see what's hidden in your heart

I'd rather be blind, than to watch you walk away
I'd rather not hear, than to have to hear you say
But baby, you're not sure, you even love me anymore
I'd rather be wrong, about that look in your eyes
I'd rather not know, you're about to say goodbye
I can't pretend that I don't see
While you're lying here with me
There's somewhere else you'd rather be

I'd rather be blind, than to watch you walk away
I'd rather not hear, than to have to hear you say
But baby, you're not sure, you even love me anymore
I'd rather be wrong, about that look in your eyes
I'd rather not know, you're about to say goodbye
I can't pretend that I don't see
While you're lying here with me
There's somewhere else you'd rather be

Somewhere else you'd rather be
