Everyone tells them that they're too young to know about the ways of the world and curves that fate can throw They never ask for much with their backs against the wall
He turns to her, says, baby tonight let me take it all

Because tonight we are as young as we are ever gonna be
These may be the best days of our lives
Who knows as we grow older if we'll ever feel this free
Tonight we are as young as we are ever gonna be

A man and a woman who've been left behind Knowing age is the enemy of hearts and minds The freedom of faith has made them reckless and sincere He says, darlin' we've got one last chance at some magic here

ever gonna be
Who knows as we grow older if we'll ever feel this
free

Everywhere you look there's caution outside lookin' in Searchin' for that perfect circumstance But time never has stood still and it ain't about to start
The sidelines are covered with wreckage of wasted hearts

Because tonight we are as young as we are
ever gonna be

Who knows as we grow older if we'll ever feel this
free
Tonight we are as young as we've ever gonna be Oh
Because tonight we are as young as we've ever gonna be
Who knows as we grow older if we'll ever feel this
free
Tonight we are as young as we've ever gonna be Oh, tonight
