

Marty Robbins

"Sixteen Weeks"

Visit "Sixteen Weeks" on MotoLyrics.com

Sixteen weeks ago tonight I let you walk away
I threw a kiss and smiled as you walked out the door
But I've done some thinkin', lately, and I find That it isn't half as funny as before

Sixteen weeks ago tonight I really played a fool
Made a big mistake, but everybody does Lately, though, I've done some cryin' 'cause I find That it isn't half as funny as it was Didn't miss you until I dreamed about some things we used to do

Then I realized how long you'd been away
Don't know how much more of this my heart can take Wish I'd known the difference sixteen weeks could make

Didn't miss you until I dreamed about some things we
used to do
Then I realized how long you'd been away
Don't know how much more of this my heart can take Wish I'd known the difference sixteen weeks could
make

Visit Marty Robbins page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.