Taped on my shoulder
Turned round to see her
Gowns made of satin
She started laughing

I'd been out walking
The hills had been sloping
I drank some tea with her
Sat in a tree with her

I'd been balancing for a
Thousand years
And in a second, I fell down

Flushes my cheek
Ruins my weeks
Melts my heart, melts my heart

Don't eat for days
It won't go away
Melts my heart, melts my heart

Burned by her beauty
Savage and sultry
Face like a goddess
Soul like a priestess

The world is an island
Sitting in my hand
Stare at you longer
I can't keep my hands from her

Her hair is golden thread
Glittering
Her mind is drifting in the stars

Steals my eyes
Heals my cries
Melts my heart, melts my heart

Love her so much
Her feel and her touch

Melts my heart, melts my heart

She floats down the Nile
All the pyramids smile
The shape of her cheekbones
Even her sleep glows

In case you don't her
You might recognize her
You just have to want her
Soon you will see her

Who created such a perfect
Thing
I think the answer's in our hearts

Chasing my tail
Sending me pale
Melts my heart, melts my heart

Steals my eyes
Heals my cries

Lover her so much

Swear that I'd die
If she flew to the sky
Melts my heart, melts my heart.
