every bridge that you keep on burning every leaf that you keep on turning every road that you find uncertain pray for you now
baby that you'll figure it out
as you keep chasing the light

remember back when you slept on my floor blow up mattress down by the door 10 pounds heavier from wasted time we didn't know we were way out of line from the moment that you popped out on the scene hard to know what you got or you're meant to be everything that you know goes flying from jonny o's couch to a gypsy bus island holding hands with people in life till they walk away saying no good byes and you keep saying that you're running down a dream but you don't know where it leads as you keep chasing the light

every hope and dream that's dying every time that i see you crying every step that you keep on climbing
baby that you figure it out

got the call that you sent out yesterday 40 lines and a fallout holiday on my knees with the weight that was mine think about you when i'm driving at night familiar sounds and it takes me right back there bridge street and the beat in the summer air was it easier to watch your feet and never deal with the hell that a young boy sees where liquor runs thicker than blood on your own when push comes to shove before we had these mouths to feed with innocent dreams while you keep chasing the light

remember hearing dylan's first songs first remember writing down a train wreck verse we were running down franklin high school lights burning alive in a chevrolet night remember driving out to salton sea dreaming bout all we thought we'd be one way tickets into southern lights slammed the door and said goodbye, goodbye
