Stop this runaway car
I want to get off, I want to go back
If I left you there then I left it all behind

'Cause all I'm feeling now
Is the weight of the world bearing down
I don't have answers for any of my questions anymore

'Cause I might have been wrong
I might have been scared, all alone
I might have been standing on the top of the world
What a difference a day makes
I turned and watched you walk away
I might have been standing on the top of the world
'Cause I might have been wrong

Tail lights and a seat on the right
And a losing fight, into the night
Oh all the wild horses running down my veins

It's one word and the softest eyes
You say you'll wait and I go hide
If you're still there then you're still all I want

Because I might have been wrong
I might have been scared, all alone
I might have been standing on the top of the world
What a difference a day makes
I turned and watched you walk away
I might have been standing on the top of the world
'Cause I might have been wrong

I might have been wrong
Might have been wrong
Might have been
Might have been

Stop this runaway car
If we're not that gone and we're not that far
If I left you there then I left it all behind

'Cause I might have been wrong

I might have been scared, all alone
I might have been standing on the top of the world
What a difference a day makes
I turned and watched you walk away
I might have been standing on the top of the world
'Cause I might have been wrong

I might have been wrong
Might have been wrong
Might have been
Might have been
Might have been wrong
