lights out and my seat back as far as it will go casting shadows like statues i'm right outside your window theres no such thing as second chances theres no such thing don't bother to explain you're so beautiful did you hear a word i said you're so beautiful i guess this is what i get we trust and believe so easily in words they speak we seek security in one another but theres no way to cover this and these tragic nights and afternoons wreak disaster and i can still feel you as if you were in the room where did our story end where did it start i buried you along with my heart entertain me and tell me "it didn't mean anything" it's vengous worth my tolerance and i could be careless but i promise you'll feel everything i know did you hear a word i said? i know. i guess this is what i get.
