I was feeling left out at my old friends house so i sat on the couch and i go and now were running inside on a circular track and i'm feeling the same way so i step outside and start my car and i'm driving nowhere nowhere Till my cars smolders out on the side of the road so i close my eyes and listen to the song it went oh it's cold i know but it reminds me of something and its a great [insert word] too

I was making my way through new years day with some people that i know i already knew what with so much to do and I know i didn't start i was feeling the same as you so i loaded the truck found a place to set up started feeling like myself again with a frozen toe on the concrete walls it is here that i was staying with you oh it's cold i know but it reminds me of something at least i have you

at least i have you (3x)

at least i have you (4x)

what are the things that we couldn't say in a language that we use everyday and now were heading home in an east setting sky and i remember why we started this i can see you holding on to the sunset place with the windows that went from here to the bay was it the hills that i picked or the chills at the peaks or was it just another time we shared i'm so sure i know its cold and it reminds me of something

(x3)

i'll always have you (x4)
