When your heroes have all let you down
And you find that your faith is unsound
Come to me dear, with your broken heart
When the thorn will not fall from your side
You've waited too long and life's passed you by
Come to me dear, with your broken heart

You're not the only one who's been let down
What would it take for you to come back around
Come back around

When the words that had changed you for good
Turned out to be misunderstood
Come to me dear, with your broken heart

You're not the only one who's been let down
What would it take for you to come back around
Come back around

When your heroes have all let you down
And you find that your faith is unsound
Come to me dear, with your broken heart
